“ I'm so saddened that I'm only finding out about Mac's passing almost 10 months after the fact. I was a customer of Mac's for almost 10 years. He was such a kind and genuine man. When my mother was diagnosed with a terminal illness, he provided his personal cell phone that if every the heating or air stopped working to call him 24/7 so that he could ensure she was comfortable during her journey. When he came by to work on my various issues at the house - he would always sit and chat for a bit. It felt like a member of the family stopped by every time!

The world lost a wonderful soul in Mac's passing. I'm so deeply sorry for the family's loss.

“ Tricia, thank you for the kind words. My dad loved his work and his customers, it is so good to hear from people that he made their days just a little better. Keeps his loving memory alive

“ I was only a customer of Mac's but I loved him too. I referred him to everyone that I could. He did wonderful work for my mother-in-law, my brother, my niece, not to mention my wife and me. One time Mac bid a job for me in my shower and it took three times as long as he thought it would. He stuck with his bid, but enjoyed reminding me over the years how much I owed him! I pray that the Good Lord comfort Mac's loved ones during this unknowably difficult time of mourning this good man.

“ I don't even know where to start ,Mac was like another dad to me. He was always there to give me advice weather I wanted it or not. He was honest , generous, and the protector. He always made sure Megan and I had what needed and sometimes gave us money just to get out of his hair . Through the years I watched him fight and care for his family. He was an honorable man and will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

“ Mac was my brother, and I would have died for him.

Mac was the first person I ever talked with when I was a baby. Mac was 18 months older than me and my constant baby sitter. When I was an infant, in a baby walker/bouncer, Mac could still knew what a baby said, and he relayed my messages to my Mom.

He protected me from bullies at schools and the streets, and our father. Mac would stand between me and the monster, called my father, and he would join in on the pain of a beating to reduce my father's wrath on me.

Mac taught me everything that was important. Mac loved to read, and he taught me to love books. I have a learning disability, and I didn't read my first book, Cat in the Hat, until 5th grade. However, Mac helped me read comic books. I would never have read at all if it wasn't for Mac.

Mac was my memory. He remembered everything from our childhood, and I remembered nothing, a result of multiple concussions. He remembered when he went to school in New York, and how cold it was in Pontiac, MI. We talked about these memories in his final months.

Mac, I love you forever. Let God accept you into heaven and heal your body and mind.

“ When we were replacing Megan’s window in her house in St. Louis. Mac told me to come Caulk the lines. So I went and caulked the lines and afterwards I was standing back admiring my work. Mac walked up behind me and said “Ryan there’s caulking jobs and then there’s your caulk job...[shaking his head] let me go get Megan to fix your mess” LOL his one liners were always perfect! I learned a lot from Mac and got a lot of those one liners through the years!
